Opportunities and Challenges

3 sets of matters:

- Certification
- ECVET accreditation
- Continued piloting of the SOLOS model

Certification

- The certification process should take on board multiple company representatives, preferably from as many different member States as possible.
- Training certification should take into account The EU Commission's Recommendation to implement the European Qualifications Framework (EQF).
- Certification is the necessary preliminary step before ECVET accreditation (based on learning outcomes).

ECVET accreditation

- Certifications in units of learning outcomes through assessment and allocation of credit points.
- Ensures accumulation, recognition & transfer of learning outcomes.
- Allows two dimensions of mobility:
 - National
 - Transnational (EU)

ECVET accreditation process

- Set up an extensive partnership (from as many different countries as possible)
- Design units of learning outcomes
- Allocate credit points to each unit
- Consolidate the partnership through the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding
- Create the conditions for the transfer of credits (ensure recognition through the conception of mutual trust tools, set up engagements of partners and stakeholders, mainly training centres and employers)
- Conduct an evaluation/impact study of the piloting

ECVET accreditation system

- Representatives of trainees
- Employers
- Training centres
- National certification bodies

Continued piloting of SOLOS model

- Extend successful piloting of SOLOS model from ‘in company’ to other environments.
- Applicable to problem-solving and competence-building in any organisation in which tasks and work are organized in a complex fashion.
- Address other goals such as improvement of company communication, trust and team-building.
- Transfer to other sectors beyond EUCOLOG framework (logistics).
